

Student life director awarded high honor

John Spranza, director of student life at Georgia Highlands College, was awarded the Programming Adviser of the Year, the highest professional honor awarded by the Association for the Promotion of Campus Activities, at last weekend's national convention in Atlanta. He was one of four finalists for the award. John Spranza was named the Programming Adviser of the Year.

The APCA is a national campus activities organization of more than 200 member institutions founded in 1994 to serve the needs of campus activities programming departments at two- and four-year institutions.

Spranza was among a group of 20 student life professionals honored by the APCA in 2005 for leadership. This award singles him out as a leader in the country for creativity and diversity in student activities programming.
