Alumni Association Started

Through the years Floyd College has made numerous attempts to establish an Alumni Association with little or no success. Alumni members of the Floyd College Foundation are again trying to gather support for an alumni group. The problem with establishing an alumni association is that little information has been kept on the more than 100,000 students who have attended the college. The organizers of the current group are relying on word-of-mouth and public service announcements on area radio stations to get alumni involved.

Spearheading the efforts are Laura Whitton and Scott Bentley, with the guidance and coordinating efforts of Barbara Myers, Foundation executive director. The goals set for the group are: to provide networking opportunities for current students; to increase alumni participation at the college; to provide financial support to the Floyd College Foundation; to continually promote Floyd College to potential students; and to serve as ambassadors of Floyd College in the community.

Annual dues to the Alumni Association are $15. Those paying their dues by September 1 will be "Charter Members." Planning meetings for the Alumni Association are ongoing. A family picnic is scheduled for September 18, and "TGIFC--Thank Goodness It's Floyd College" week will include numerous activities during the week of October 18.

New Solarium Planned

The rendering above is of a new solarium and art gallery which will be placed between the current solarium and the B Building. The new building will be used as a student lounge area and will have the capacity to seat 125 people for a dinner. Student Activities offices will be housed in the current solarium and the Bookstore will be extended through the current Student Activities Offices and will open on to the dining area. Construction is set to begin in early fall with completion in winter. Funds for the building will come from auxiliary enterprises which have limited uses.
